

2009 Alishan Safe Community Annual Report

1. “Intentional injury prevention committee” newly established

- According to the data recorded by the community injury surveillance center, alcohol induced violence has been on a constant rise. In order to prevent cases of suicides, self-mutilation, violence and alcohol induced intentional injuries, the Alishan Safe Community has established a task force—intentional injury prevention committee to address the aforementioned problems. The unit will be headed by Mr. Chian-Hsiung Wong, Director of the Center for Alishan Tribal Health Affairs. Other members include chief officer of the Social Assistance Section of Social Affairs Department, Chiayi County; pastor of Chiayi Christian Hospital; Director of Counseling Center at Chiayi Christian Hospital; pastor of local community churches; and community volunteers.
- Methods: The implementation strategy involves conducting support groups. Once every two weeks, the alcohol-troubled persons, along with their family members will be invited to the support group under the auspices of social workers, pastors and volunteers to address their drinking problems in order to lower the occurrences of alcohol related violence.
